That's what he says and it may be the way it was meant to be but WW/EAs continued inability to fix that exploit/bug speaks much louder than that one solitary person. When did that last BETA patch come out? 3 Months now right? How about that last one? How hard is it to correct that glitch? I don't care about how they are working on E&B or who got fired or hired or who bought who. I am a customer and I shelled out a nice amount of money for this product. I have every right to expect it to be complete and to use it as it was designed. It was designed with certain exploits on certain maps and that's what I paid for and that's the way it should be played. Anyone that has to adjust and make rules to make up for the poor craftsmanship of this game is encouraging further behavior on the behalf of game makers.
