I get the same problem, so now most times I don't waste my breath (or fingertips) unless I see someone else talking. I found that if you pick someone and follow them to back them up, you can work as a team without having to say anything. Yesterday I did this and we took out a refinery, hand of nod and penned the enemy in their base with 2 med tanks. As long as you choose the right person to follow, if not, follow someone else until you're a team.
