My Hollywood moment was on Walls. I was a Hotwire and one other guy was a Mobius. We made it into the Nod base, but we were spotted halfway to the refinery by a bunch of infantry and a light tank. Dodging the fire, we made it in the front door (no mines, which was weird). I planted my c4, and hid near the other door. We both knew they were coming, and the Mobius messaged "Today is a good day to die - stay put" and ran out with volt cannon blazing. I took a quick peek while I waited for the timed c4 to go off and saw the Mobius die a glorious death, charging the light tank, gunfire all around him in true Hollywood-death style.Of course, we got the refinery...just barely. I had to pistol a tech trying to disarm the timed c4.Just goes to show I should take screenshots more often.
