Ive got a funny story, and a few strats of my own. Story: I was a Havoc, and I was sniping a Raveshaw over and over and over again. I had 2000 points. everyone wanted to kill me, but i sniped 'im all to death. They only had a break when I went back to base to reload. I had like 39 kills growing quickly. I de-activated scope, looked around where I had mined as a Hotwire b4 I got there. I had even mined tunnel leading to my position. I saw a flicker up against one wall. I fired twice with my Ramjet, hitting the wall. I thought i was ok, and sniped for 10 more secs. But, i saw a flicker again. I fired twice more. Suddenly, i saw that i had hit wall on either side of him, and he was standing still, acting like a rock. So, headshot fished him off. But, he came back as a Nod soldier, inched by my mines, (sweating i bet) and laid a timed c4 on me just as i turned off scope. I shot him, and ran like heck back to base screaming DEACTIVATE THIS C4 ON ME!! HURRY MORONS! BANG. I was dead, but came back just in time ot kill Raveshaw one more time and i was MVP that game. My fav strat is to wait till a stealth soldier runs past you, follow him, lay a remote c4 on him, let him know your there, and "Push the button". Its sooo much fun. I did that twice in same game and they finally quit trying to get me and tank rushed instead.
