What I normally do in this situation is hop in their vehicle and back it up some. That way they at least can't get back in it and head to another building. Then I go in after them. It's amazing what people do and don't do these days. I was just in a gamer where 20 minutes into it I noticed that our base was still not mined at all. Thankfully the enemy didn't try APC rushes until we had better defense. I guess I'll go back to taking care of the initial mining, since too many often people don't seem to understand the importance.
