Since my first post on this thread I have a lot more attention to engines and the more I look the more I can understand someone's frustration. I took some high HP characters today with an eng/hotwire and was accused of cheating. I usually got 3-4 shots before they ever noticed I was there and killed them with a couple of more shots. I noticed that when I did this the person on question was just too focused on what he/she was doing instead of looking for little old me. The pistol is a good weapon because you simply can't hear from 20 or so feet away. I even began using it as a stealth as I can usually get right behind someone and get 2-3 headshots. Which will put down most anyone.
