I know this is VERY VERY late but I just remembered this from the demo days. It was a lovely day in....um....some month of when the demo came out and I had just joined a game on the side of the brotherhood, after a few small skirmishes I had enough money to buy a stealth black hand. Walking out of the base in my new suit a light tank met me and we had a heated debate which I lost, well needless to say I was a little perturbed.....AW STUFF THIS NICE CP that tank driver pi*sed me off to no end. When I respawned I had enough money for a Black hand chain laser guy which I bought. The light tank was still at the bases front so I rushed him and with the help of a mobile arti scrapped his tank and him, then I walked out of the base and saw a GDI trooper ZIP,ZIP,ZIP BOINK he fell dead, another guy appeared out of the rock shadow and BOINK I killed him also. A MRLS came around the corner of the rock feature and I opened fire, he hit reverse and backed up across the tib field only to blow up on the other side and die a burning laser death. Now if only I could play that good all the time....well enough rambling has anyone else had a time were someone has pied you off and you have gone on a killing spree that amazed you when you looked back on it afterwards?.
