I always put it outside the buildings in the little gaps around the edge. e.g The power plant has a little nook at the back. If you put it on the roof or inside they tend to be the first places that someone looks for them. You can also place the beacon under stairs or anywhere that you can cover while being hidden. Placing mines around it is also a good idea, then the engineer has to disable them before the beacon. In one game I played the other team put a beacon on the roof and laid mines up the ramps so we couldn't get up to the roof to disable it.
