I think perhaps those might be spread too thin in some areas. Would have to actually see it though. If the doors are the only way in, I'd think that 5 on each door would be more effective at making sure anything that walks in will die. Not to contradict my previous posts.. I never said that covering the doors was bad. I just prefer covering the MCT areas and it seems to work well for me so far. The doors are definately better but also use more.
