You know, when this bug first started, I was all aboard the exploit wagon, asking people not to blow up the enemy harvy...but now I feel the complete opposite about it. For one, destroying the enemy harvy doesn't usually fix the problem, per say. The stupid thing usually comes right back out and rams into it's magical hidden door only it can see (whats all that smoke coming out of the harvy's driver side window...and is that Cheech Fing Marin behind the wheel)...and, it is such a pain in the butt to have the bug happen on YOUR side, that I just think it's the gentlemanly thing to do. Also, not hitting it robs your team of some cheap and easy points.Zukkov, I've had the same thing happen to me, i.e. having a rush blocked by the enemy harvester...but I think it felt it was the least it could do for the team, having brought in no cash or nothin' for them.My vote: Always kill the enemy harvy, but don't make it a priority...and DON'T blow it up as your on your way in for a rush, or else it will Play D!!
