Excellent post! I agree, people tend to just run off rambo-style, and when they die quickly, just do it again and not learn from their mistake. I hope that when people actually buy this game and play through the SP missions they'll have a better grasp of the strategies needed to win. Of course, this (no team-work) is a problem with online gaming in general, very seldom do people try and move in squads in public servers. Hopefully this won't be the case in Renegade, but if it is I think I'm going to need to find a clan to play this the way it was meant to be played.
