You can trace every shot no matter what sniper rifle your using.. but Havoc/Sak just make it easier. you see... when i don't know where a sniper is, but he knows where i am, i go out in the open AGAINST the wall, also duck, jump, whatever, BUT if you got normal detail on, and good sound (and if the enemy sniper is a decent shot) he will try and shoot at you.. when he does, he will miss (hopefully) but since he missed, the bullet will hit the wall and make a sound, now real quick look at the wall, find the bullet hole.. the bullet makes a indent from where it was shot so you can easily tell where the shot came from, then aim over to that direction, and shoot him (but don't miss!) i'm sure that the info i just handed out will help many a sniper [ August 22, 2002, 17:16: Message edited by: TestGun ]
