no, because in the time machine, the reason he built it was to go back and save his girlfriend. dur! ACK is right, he was working on the machine just because, not because of hitler. no paradox there. and it is true, einstein himself said going back in time was impossible. dont forget, the chronosphere still existed after he altered history, and then in YR he made a new more stable time machine. "he got tired" is stupid. he could always have someone else do it if he could not. it is possible that no matter what, war would happen. but without hitler and stalin, it would have continued to build up, and would have been much more devastating to the world. maybe the ra einstein saw this.
