Epic have no say in it at all - you can make any kind of mod you like and, as long as it doesn't infringe their IP rights, there's nothing they can do. EA/Westwood are the stumbling block here, and I believe it's the way that they're asked for permission that will dictate how they respond (i.e. no mention of "improving" renegade, or "better netcode" etc) - anything that appears to denigrate Renegade will be summarily dismissed. It's certainly an interesting situation.
