In other words, you care not if you take others' models, and if they object, you'll tell them where to go.If you think my attitude or anyone else's is bad, look at yours. Use of a program, even if you paid for it, doesn't mean you have full rights to sit there and steal work from others, even Westwood themselves. I don't care if the entire world did something, does that make it correct or just? A mentality like that is sickening. Think for yourself and don't depend on the tired mantra of "Well everyone else does it, that means I can too!"Remember that when people take your maps and call them their own. I'm sure you'll be one of the first whining about it.As I've said before... You steal anything of mine and use it in your maps without my permission and you'll have hell to pay. I have no qualms with dragging my name through the mud to take your (You in general.) punk-ass down. I'm sure I've demonstrated that plenty of times.