Just from the specs, it looks like a decent entry-level water cooling kit. I think if you bought it you would probably learn alot, but don't expect to keep this kit forever. There will end up being some things you don't like about it, but it's all pretty minor stuff and you have to get your feet wet somehow.

Yes, you do need a radiator. It's what actually cools the water down. That and the fan. Which attaches to the radiator.
