I put a hard drive as a slave in my computer so I could put some stuff on it for another computer. Well on this computer when I restart it or turn it on it now gives me two choices at start up. It asks me which windows XP I want to start. Well only one works because the other hard drive is no longer installed.

How do I get that to turn off?

I have tried editing the bios to make sure it was not recognizing the hard drive, but that still shows up.
