

---

Subject: what is renguard written in?

Posted by Sir Kane on Sun, 18 Jul 2004 22:18:57 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

ghostSWTClient side is in C? just C, not VC++/MFC. i thought that C is just like a command prompt type of language and has no complex visual component unless you use like a shit load of (line, circle, oval, rectangle, setcolor, setfillstyle, floodfill...) commands. Did C change in the past 6 years since I used it last? What C commands let's you bring up a webpage, make buttons and use the mouse?

Ever heard about Windows API?

---