I liked reading your strategies but I have 1 question. You said an arty should beat a med close to the arty's base. But you later said a med can pin a Nod player in their base effectively this way.

From my experience on field the med can dish more damage to the arty, since neither player will miss at that range. So the arty'll be forced to retreat every time. BUT, if the arty does some damage, retreats and techs his arty quickly (not necessarily to full health), he can win because the hotty won't be able to repair her med at the same rate.

It becomes complex with good players because, supposing the med was killed and purchased an MRLS to counter the arty now making his way into the field, the arty has the upper hand like you described. Also, tunnel strategies were missed out. Is it not at all plausible to use the tunnels (i.e. a $1000 character and beacon) while your enemy is making their way around the field to you?
