Your team loses, rank go down. Team wins, rank go up.

comprehend? yes? no? maybe? Rank is related to a player's skill AND a player's team's skill in a game. If a player is really good, his team will be that much better overall because of him. You're saying "Your team loses, rank go down. Team wins, rank go up" as if a single player has absolutely no influence whatsoever in the outcome of the game itself. Obviously, that's wrong. The more skilled the player, the more influence he/she has on the outcome of the game on average. Therefore, more skilled players win more often because they help their team out more, and therefore they have higher rank.
