Commando no. 448Dying out wouldn't really harm the people.

I'm glad that you can sleep at night, by telling yourself that its not "really" murderous or inhuman to wish future generations, including your children and childrens children to be dead. Is genocide too scary a word for you?

Keep telling yourself that wishing mankind would cease to exist is "okay" since you aren't personally killing them.

Are you sure it isn't YOU that wants to cease to exist? Does life not make you happy? Do you think that life doesn't make others happy?

Who are you to "decide" (thank goodness it's not your decision) upon the future of the human race? Why do you think your children do not deserve to live?

Here's how it works: You are born, you grow and learn. You live your life as best you can and then you die. Unless you did something pretty significant during your lifetime, nobody will even remember you a generation later.

Why do you think that the human race dying out would be a good thing?

Is this about "leaving the earth to the animals"? I'm an animal lover myself, but don't forget that we are animals too, and have just as much right to be alive as a bear in the woods or a daisy in a field.
