He is using the controls within the game's limitations and there was never a defined "rate" that you could toss explosives at. The whole reason for using keys combinations, such as E, 6, 7 was so that units could be bought quickly. If Westwood didn't want people refilling with a button press, they'd have prevented refills by just hitting 5. Besides, you provide better building defense with 10 timed c4s stashed throughout the interior than 100 at a single PT.

I think his "exploit" is as much an exploit as refilling in battle, and I also think the other 2 people in those chat logs lack discipline and don't know how to moderate a server.

Quote:<jessie182> you cannot throw out 20 mines at a time

<jessie182> you have a hack

<Zonekill9> Its not a hack

<Zonekill9> Duh

<Zonekill9> Everyone can do that

<jessie182> no they can't

<Zonekill9> Yeah

<jessie182> no

First clue you're an idiot: Arguing about something by passing falsification as fact. she obviously didn't think it was possible to do, which makes the ban wrong.
