I hope you realize that we were at 45% and above before I posted anything about the poll. I never caused it to be biased, either. I do not control the actions of anyone but myself. If people choose to vote for something, they'll do it. Whining about it is pointless because the entire reason the poll is up is to find out who is playing what, and if the RA players vote, it gives an accurate statistic as to who plays RA compared to the laziness or lack of players in Generals' community.

No one is misguided by thinking RA is the only thing worth playing. Some might say you're misguided for even believing that people think that, or that you're on some kind of crusade that might change someone's mind about what they believe. You're wasting your time...
