
Subject: Damn that's a big protest.
Posted by Fabian on Sun, 29 Aug 2004 21:21:57 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

CrimsonA group that I'm in is among the "counterprotesters"... you'll have to excuse our smaller numbers, but we have jobs.

On the other hand, my boss got himself a seat at the convention. I'm so jealous.

On the third presidential debate, I'll be involved with a group who protests the protesters in the designated "free speech area". Should be a blast.

On the contrary, people without jobs don't have the time or money to travel to New York to protest. To suggest that liberals don't have jobs just makes you look ignorant and foolish.

Let's see...you are going to protest a bunch of people who know you are there just to counter them, and you will be severely outnumbered. Gee, that sounds smart. I hope you don't get injured, because it looks like these "counterprotesters" are asking for trouble.

Oh, and Nodbugger, shut up. Just shut up.
