I was playing High Noon on a server yesterday, actually. The last time I ever played one of your maps was over 6 months ago, and that was voted to be skipped 3 minutes into the game.

And if you can't figure out what I meant by setting fire to threads, you should really be worried for your own intelligence. You have already been proven wrong in that "flaming" is indeed a term for heated exchange on a forum, and thus the analogy of setting fire to a thread should logically follow. You aren't impressing anyone when you play dumb.

How do you think Titan's previous maps were flukes? Did he accidentally trip on his shoelaces and create a decent map? How can you accidentally, intentionally do something?
