Hmmm... I never really got in trouble in my high school years, but one of my friends did. My friends and I were able to pop the hood of my math teachers car. Then one of my friends spontaneously began to piss in the radiator. Then he got the bright idea of taking the oil cap off and taking a shit in the engine. As soon as he started to release his load one of the school staff members caught him. We were around the corner so we didn't get caught. As soon as we heard the school staff member shout we ran for the hills. We didn't get caught but my friend did.

My friend got suspended for a whole week. We started calling him Mr. Shits ever since.
