Subject: RenAlert Forums.
Posted by spoonyrat on Sat, 18 Sep 2004 22:10:00 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Chronojam is an admin of the RenAlert forums. He was recently kicked from my public servers for lag killing, which is clearly laid down as against the rules. He was allowed on the condition that he stop lag killing. Today he was caught in the act again, and after insulting some of our mods who were telling him to stop lag killing, he was temp-banned. In response, he banned me from the RenAlert forums.

His "argument" for banning me is all down to one comment I made on the RenAlert forums. That comment was: "You are nowhere near correct". If that counts as a bannable offence, then I humbly accept this suspension and admit that I am in the wrong. However, I wonder if everyone else will see this situation as I do: He broke our server rules, he got JUSTIFIABLY kicked, and he banned me from his forums in revenge because he couldn't handle being proved wrong.