SuperFlyingEngiThat's a pretty big generalization you've got going there, Nodbugger, especially against one of our few real allies in Iraq.

It is not a generalization considering nothing was generalized. I said most. If I had said all you would be right.

The majority of British people are not our allies. Tony Blair and some of the British Government is.

I'd think the British would be one of the last people to reject this war.

It shows how the European mentality is slipping farther away from reality.
