Create a post about your plan for the future of this forum without mentioning your candidate's names.

Me and John Kerry have a strong plan for the future of this forum.

"You just said his name"

Oh? Uh, I broke the rule I guess laugh

I was laughing when he kept doing that.

I agree that the debate went largely in Cheyney's favor. Edwards just couldn't connect on the points he connected on. When he talked about healthcare and lawsuits and said because he was a malpractise lawyer he had experience. Then Cheyney fires back that it actually happened to him. He was injured on the job, he had no life insurance.

After viewing this debate though, I'm much more satisfied that Cheyney's the VP. Before this you never know really what he's on about, what he thinks, or what he does, besides his coronarys, strokes, and heart attacks. Now however you get to see him speaking, thinking, and addressing questions in a very adroit fashion.

Twas pretty cool.
