It is supposed to look the way it does, ever consider the possibility that I made it look that way intentionally? It's just like the MCV in the videos, and it's also a lot like a truck would look like in reality.

The part you don't seem to "get" is that EVERYTHING your dumbass member Retardin does looks like plastic or concrete mixed in with plastic. The MCV was intentionally made to look the way it does because the shell section of it is meant to expand and turn into a structure. How the fuck else can it look? Is it that hard to comprehend it?? It's a special unit, it's meant to look different.

Retardin's work has nothing to do with units that expand and turn into something else. They all look like plastic\concrete Tonka toys because of the sheer lack of detail, attention, and color schemes he puts into them. They're all alike, and they all suck.

There's the difference.
