

---

Subject: Router question

Posted by YSLMuffins on Sun, 10 Oct 2004 21:01:57 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

In general, shouldn't routers straight out of the box already be configured to 100% protect my computer? I ask because I've uninstalled my previous software firewall and switched to a D-link hardware one, and I just want to make sure if I keep up my practices at avoiding viruses/trojans/spyware I'll still be safe (IE, there won't be any trojans or spyware sneaking in and installing itself under my nose). I've never had anything malicious get past when I had the software firewall.

---