There are two obvious examples of unrealistic lasers in the Tiberian Sun universe, those being the Nod defence laser and the laser fence (since they have "laser" in the name, I would assume that they're meant to be actual lasers)... both of which feature large, clearly visible beams.

This means that firstly, Westwood used the same artistic license with their laser beams, so it's only being true to the source material... and secondly, that there must be some kind of advanced laser technology going on since they can make physical barriers from it. Who knows what futuristic lasers look like.
