oblivion165i got a geforce4 and a gig stick of ram, so its not the hardware. its just the half-rendering thing. Its a good game, it was to short for me though. Yet most games have a limited story line. Overall it deserved my money, so i ordered a clean copy of amazon.

From a distance:

Up Close:

Hell it might even be fixable, i havent looked at the options yet. It sucks because my brother and i will race swamp buggies and im hauling ass, then all of the sudden there is a pile of barrels infront of me.

though in the right mood it makes it more fun.

Uh, that has NOTHING to do with Half-Life 2. Everything renders very far for me, and the game looks hella better than that. Turn up your settings and maybe you won't feel like you wasted your money.
