HulkcoreDarkDeminFor the love of God (literally). Please say Christmas it makes me so mad when I see how secular the world has become.

To educate the uneducated. The Greek (pretty sure it's Greek) word for Christ starts with the letter X, therefore X is an abrivation for Christ, hence Xmas = Christmas. It is not meant to eliminate the word Christ, merely shorten it. Xtian is also an abrivation for Christian. It is not a secular version of the word, merely a shorter one.

Except... why not have it be lmas? Or Jmas?

I wonder if the ancient Greek for "transport helicopter" was "xport heli"?
