How 'bout this for an entertaining new Reality TV show. A throwback, remake of an old show with a twist. Saddam and his son are captured, and instead of hanging them, we send them off on exile to run a junkyard.

"Saddam & Son"
Summary:

A grumpy old psychopathic former dictator runs a failing junkyard with his son as his only true companion. Due to the sticky nature of the situation, and no one to kill at a whim, the entire program is focused on Saddam's hatred of how his son botched the running of the Iraqi military and allowed them to get their butts spanked all over the Iraqi desert. We see the old man in every episode trying to find some way to use his resources to "whack" his son, but never quite gets the picture that nothing he can do will work as the TV producers thwart him at every turn. You see Saddam continually telling the viewers that his son has been killed in one way or another at least three times in every episode, only to see the son making funny faces to the camera behind his father's back.

If you have any more ideas for this show, please add them.
