I'm not really the one to ask about balancing issues, I have been playing the game for about 5 months, others have had it since the day it came out.

I would ask modding teams especially since they have more experience of the matter. Aircraftkiller, for one, could help with this matter. And know knows, if your map is good enough he might even want it included in renalert!

But still the idea of a stammoth is risky. So I would consider it.

Glad to see someone taking interest in what the community wants instead of just making something and hoping they like it though, good work!
