No, I meant Celsius. And I know that 100C/212F is extreme and will burn most processors, but from what I've read from some overclocking forums, some lucky CPU's have survived it.

Many processors, especially AMD ones, will stay perfectly stable at 80C/176F, just like mine did, although it's a bit high temperature. I'd say anything around 60C and below is OK. Depends a lot of the CPU, of course.
