
Subject: Survival kits?

Posted by warranto on Wed, 26 Jan 2005 02:24:14 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

1. Something can be illegal, and have no action taken. That is called forgiveness. It is not that it is a legal action (it's still illegal), it's just that no action has been taken.
 2. The UN is not a nation, therefore your idea of nations answering to other nations is flawed.
 3. Those are hypocritical arguments anyways. "Iraq is bad because they didn't listen to the UN! Invade Them!" followed immediately by, "The UN is flawed, and no one has to listen to what they say. The only law that matters is a nation's own law." Oh... then concluded with, "Except Iraq. We say they have to listen, because it gives us a reason to invade them!"
-