I haven't made ANY accusations. You firstly claim that I believed what you're doing is genocide by quoting the actual definition thinking it was my own words, then you go onto to assuming that I believe that is what's happening.

If you're read carefully (which, again, you haven't), it is a PROBABILITY that the German government can charge whoever they want in their nation in relation to that crime because the word encompasses quite a long list of possible crimes should they deem the war illegal.

Stop seeing the world and other people's opinions as black and white and try using the remaining parts of your brain in an objective manner. You'll suddenly realize that your scope of things will increase quite a bit.
