IRON-FARTDelete it, then if it reappears after a few seconds it may be a legit file (restored by Windows File Protection - WFP).

The odd filename makes me think that it could be spyware/adware.

If it reappears after killing the task doesn't make it a legit file. There may be other processes running that will replace the process if it finds it's not running. Best to just search for any and all unknown files running and kill/delete them. If it was something you needed, you can always get it back.
