Do we really know who forged the documents? I don't think we can make assumptions until we know who actually did it. Sure, there's a good chance that it was, in fact, a Democrat, but maybe it was some crazy from the Green party or something. Unless we know who forged the documents, it's unfair to call it Democratic propaganda. If someone is anti-Bush, they're not necessarily Democrats -- I know plenty of people who voted for Kerry on the "I hate Bush" platform. Not very many of them associated themselves with the Democratic party, or even held Democratic ideals.
