Madtonej_ball430If they want a free one, then they can do as Madtone suggested:
Madtonelf your in the UK, <http://www.areatrade.co.uk> do free webdesign to a good standard

If they want better, they can come to <http://www.apocmedia.com> or another site of preference.
Obviously, I'm going to suggest apoc.

Seeing as we have 3 professional designers and 2 illustrators and of course 1 head developer, i think that our designs would leave you guys for dead.

BUT, i'm not even going to try to argue because we currently have over 200 jobs so we couldn't even fit you in, lol.

Exactly when do you consider someone a pro at designing? I don't think there is such a thing, you can always expand yourself and get better, saying someone is a pro to me just means they do it for a living, something that you can say "We have pro's" because guess what, we could have people just as good but they can't get the name pro simply because of age.
