to clarify, if you are running renguard, using this clear scope is considered cheating?.

I've never heard/read that anywhere from Crimson, indulge me.

understanding that renguard is not infalible, and persons may find chinks in its armor, shouldn't all things not found in "the out of the box" game code be also considered a cheat? ie: any mods or skins or textures added by users to either enhance their game play or to get advantage over their opponents.

In all due respect, where did you get this info? I've not seen Crimson/Blazer or anyone of significant importance quote that.

this is not information found anywhere... i am simply asking opinions on the matter. where is the line drawn? up to what point will you take it till someone conciders it cheating. i do not employ any modifications to my game. i enjoy losing honestly than to win underhandedly. but i have also been on the recieving end of someones hack before. yeah it sucks but this whole thread started because i was curious about the scope view, and if it was to be considered a cheat or not, and everyone seems to feel strongly though not united on the subject. what else you have to say on the matter?
