I used to work at an EB, and we used to have fun with old systems from time to time. By fun, what I mean is physical violence on a massive scale. PS2s were the only real casualties of this fun... XBoxes are just too big to fuck with and Cubes are made of space age polymer and souls so they last pretty long.

I imagine the PStwo mini will have some problems soon, a friend of mine just bought one and after only an hour of us using it the damn thing was hot enough to fry eggs on. They really need to work on their engineering teams.
