icedog90Anybody remember that oold company way back called Cavedog? You know, the one that developed the game Total Annihilation? Well, a few months ago I did a search on this company to see if it still existed, but unfortunately it was bought by GT Interactive a little while back.

It's very sad news for me, since Cavedog was a local company for me and I knew someone whose friend's dad worked there. Total Annihilation was such a great 3D RTS game (1997), it's too bad I let a friend borrow it and never got to see that friend again.

Well, rest in piece Cavedog Entertainment.

Total Annihilation rocked. That was one of the best strategy games ever made, second only to RA1 IMO. It was optimized (Ran faster than C&C95 on my P1 laptop), it was fun, it was innovative, it had it all. I wish I could find the soundtrack...
