vloktbokyl'm not going to discuss what is going on behind the scenes, or if anything is going on at all. All I can say is from a professional's POV, this behavior is intollerable. The fact that you didn't use that exploit to steal the files doesn't matter. What does matter is you are willing to take said stolen work, post it in a public place, and LAUGH at them. This is the behavior I am talking about, and it is this same behavior that is going to reach up and bite you in the ass sometime down the road, rather its tonight or some other moment later on.

It doesn't matter to me either way. If we don't work off you then the project is cancelled and I can go back to having free time to work on things that actually have some importance in my life.

It's win-win either way for me, so do whatever you want to do. I'm still going to bash Reborn and there's not a thing anyone will do about it.
