
Subject: OT: Advanced Memory Question
Posted by ADM on Thu, 10 Mar 2005 15:34:47 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

You don't need the same sticks of RAM for dual-channel to work. As long as they are from the same manufacturer and can run stably at the same frequency and timings as one another it should be fine.

Also dual channel doesn't really affect performance for what you will be needing it for. If you were an enthusiastic benchmarker then obviously then it would make quite a difference.
