

---

Subject: It's finally worth looking at.

Posted by DarkDemin on Fri, 25 Mar 2005 09:52:28 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Ok when designing a template for your site or choosing one you should always consider the minimal of what you need and then build your way up. Lets take for example apocmedia.com and animerush.org.

Apocmedia is a designing group so I had to design to our specifications. The site had to look "Cool." So I came up with a basic layout with black boxes then built onto that. The banner is very complex and I do not recommend you try anything like that as a beginner.

AnimeRush is very minimalistic. It conveys news and downloads and that is all I need it for. No extravagant design or anything like that. I suggest you try something like that for your first template.

This is my entire attempt at not calling you a fucking retard and dumping your n00bie ass out on the ground.

---