Girlfriends aside, it's not that shitty. At least he had the sense to try something new, and he didn't try and say that he made it him self. I think it's a perfectly admiral attempt. I mean come one, the whole bloody internet is infested with shit websites, the people who made them those don't even try to make them better. At least he tries, That has to be worth something.

That's not all that bad... It's a template, but if your just staring off its probably the best place to start.

As soon as you can try and change it to something original.
