I'm probably missing what you're trying to do (not uncommon)

But Renguard does separate the categories - .dds files, .W3D files, Object.dbs files and probably more. When you start Renguard these files are identified and you have the choice to delete them prior to a full Renguard startup so they're not identified. Thus ... allowing you to either join a pure or unpure server

What would be the purpose of your data folder identifier if not to do the same thing?
